

NOTICE TO ATLAS USERS

The February, 2007 edition of the Custer County Road Atlas© was prepared in order to support Custer County's rural addressing program, and in conjunction with the implementation of the E9-1-1 emergency response system. The Atlas is intended to show names and locations of all public roads within Custer County. Plats, easement documents, and other sources were extensively researched to ensure that the information presented in the Atlas is accurate. The user should bear in mind that the road network within Custer County is constantly changing due to road closures, road name changes, and new road construction.

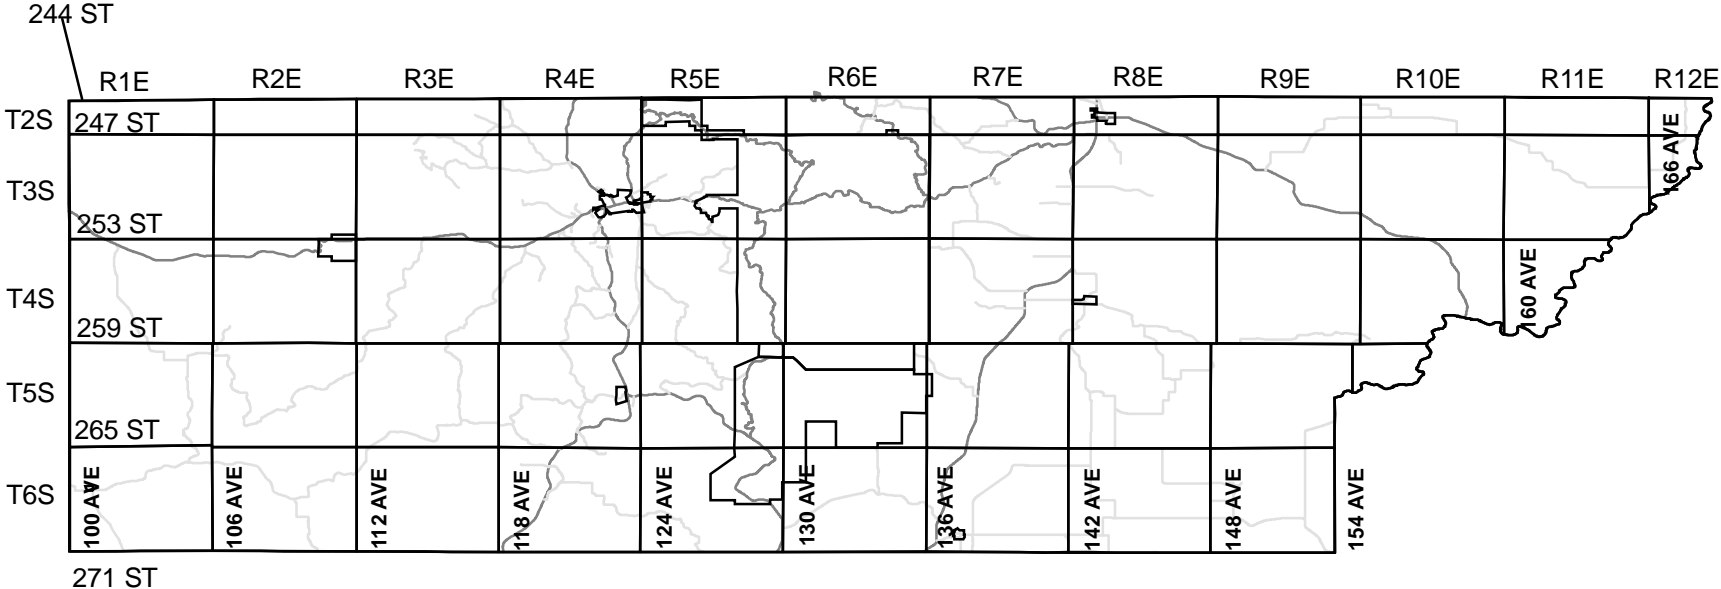

The road centerlines shown in this Atlas were gathered with Trimble Global Positioning System equipment. This data was processed to maximize accuracy and then photo-rectified. The result is map-grade line data with an accuracy of approximately +/- 2 meters.

The address ranges shown in the Atlas Index were created in compliance with state statutes and federal regulations governing a statewide address grid system. This grid system begins at 100 Street on the North Dakota border and at 100 Avenue on the Wyoming border. Grid numbers increase sequentially at each section line to the south and east of these state borders. The Custer County portion of the state-wide grid extends from 244th Street on the Pennington County border to 271st Street on the Fall River County border, and from 100th Avenue at the Weston County border to 168th Avenue at the Cheyenne River on the Pennington County border. These street and avenue grid numbers form the first three digits of any five-digit 9-1-1 address assigned to rural residents. The final two digits of each address were assigned proportionately, based upon distance along the public road of the residential driveway from the nearest appropriate section line. Custer County has installed reflective number signs at rural residential driveways to ensure that rural address assignments are uniformly displayed across the county.

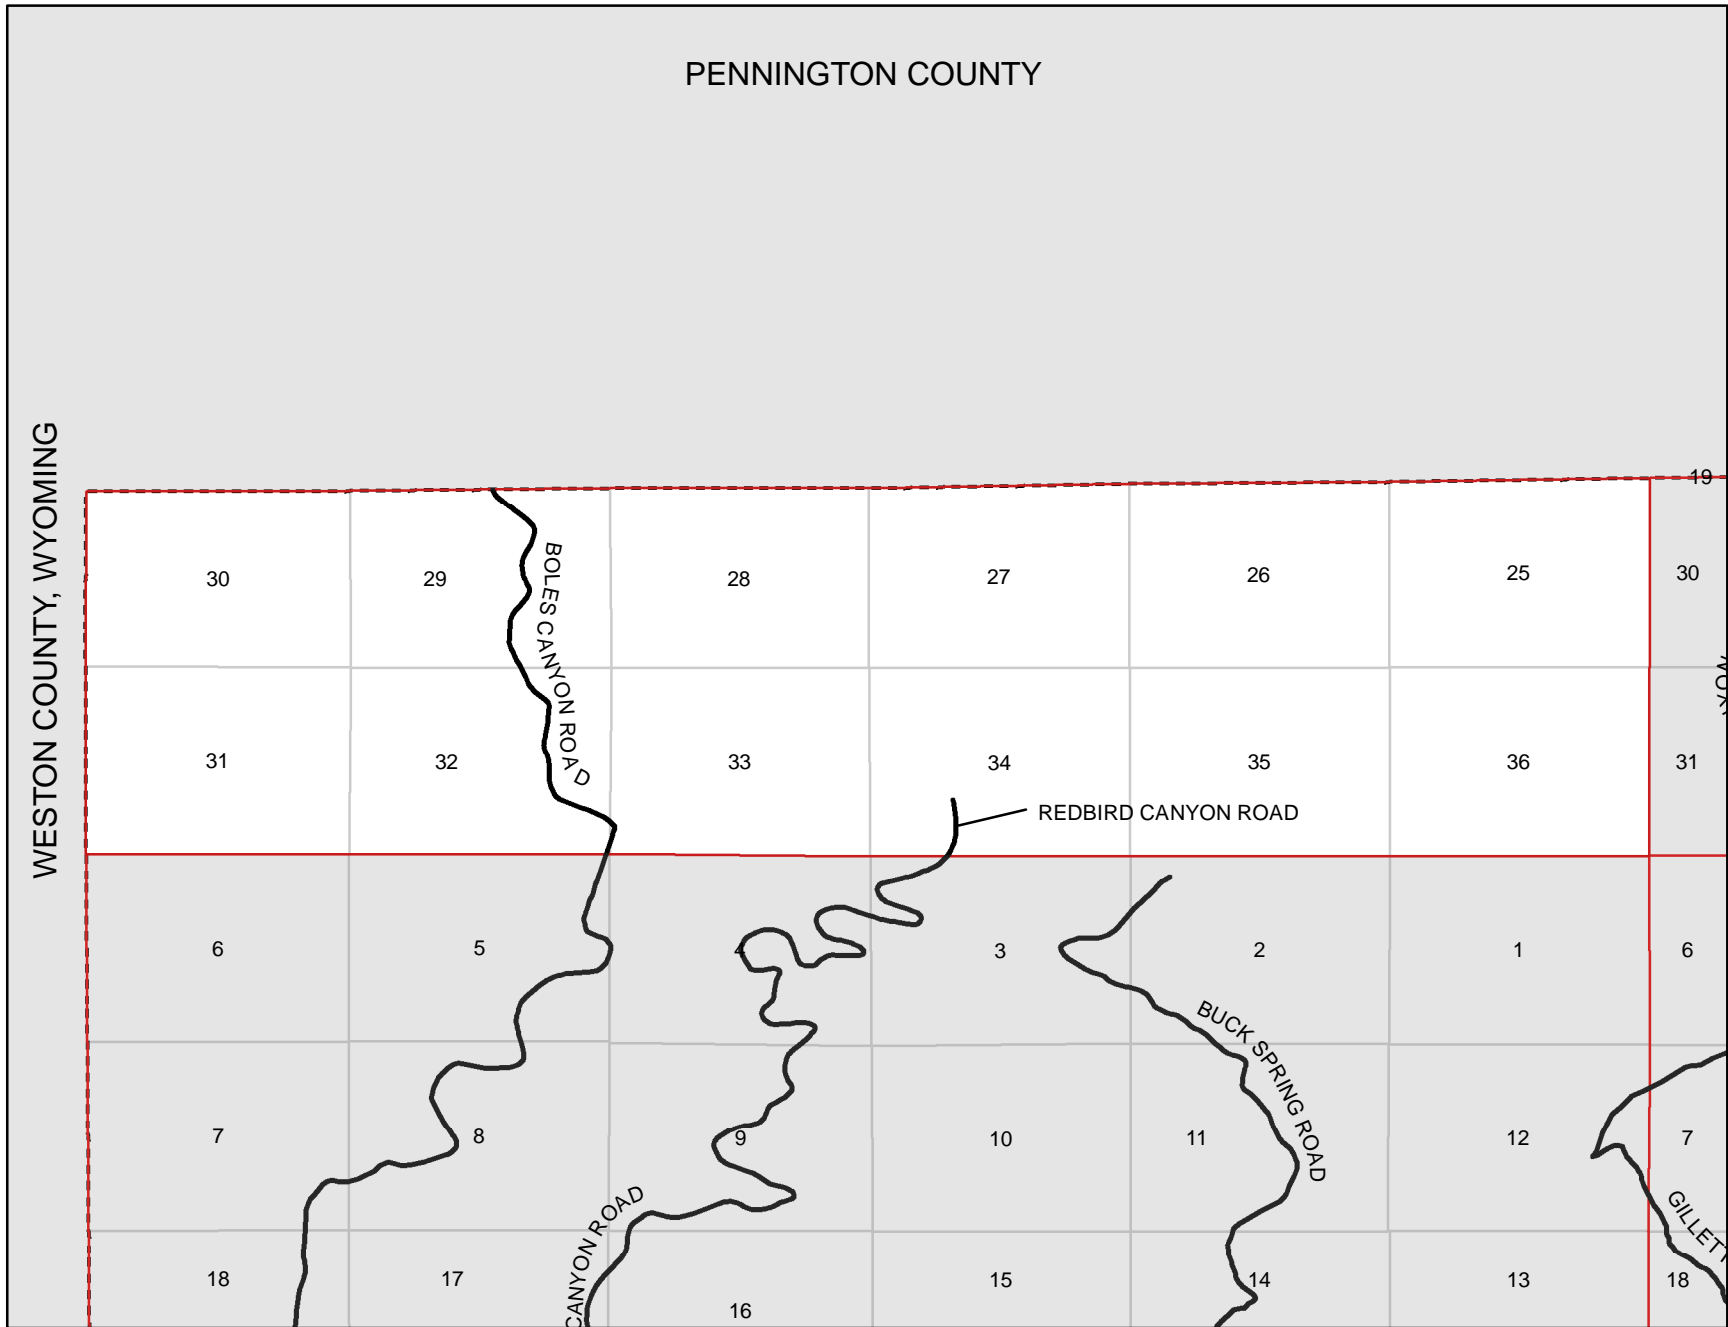

A copy of each map page of this atlas is available in pdf format on the Custer County website at custercountysd.com in the Planning Department folder. If you have questions or comments concerning the Custer County Road Atlas, please contact:
